Hi Meghan, and it has been a while. I thought your voice mail sounded familiar. Sounds like you have had a few life changes since your departure from Durango. Congratulations.

I just wanted to make sure WQCD and EPA were in the loop, and to see if we get some contact information for the press and others. The flows had reached Trimble north of Durango late this morning, and it sounds like the impacts will be seen in Durango very soon and may already be here. The Durango Herald has called a few times, and Laura from my office also got a call from NBC Universal in LA.

I thought it may be best that information come from you (WQCD) and/or Rich Mylott with EPA. I left a voice mail with Rich as well, and he is cc'd on this e-mail. If either of you want to follow-up with NBC, the contact is Gabriel at [Personal Phone/Ex. 6]. I did not talk to him directly, but Laura told me they are trying to decide whether or not to get coverage on this story. There is already quite a bit of coverage on the Durango Herald website.

If we can help EPA or WQCD in getting information or press releases distributed on our end, let us know. I've included Laura Spann on this e-mail as well in case I am not available.

Sounds good...

Bruce - you know me as Meghan Maloney (maiden name and formerly with SJCA). Happy to help in any way I can. Hope you and the family are doing well!

Best,

Meghan

Meghan and Rich: Bruce with the Southwestern Water Conservation District in Durango said his group has been getting a number of calls about the spill and he may begin directing some of them to EPA or CDPHe depending on the nature of the call.
